9,400 Sq. Miles of Rich Farming Land Under Water

Memphis, Tenn., April 25.—(AP)—The scope of the flood in Arkansas and Mississippi regions hardest hit, was graphically shown today by estimates of army engineers showing 6,000,000 acres—approximately 9,400 square miles—were under water.

The flooded land constitutes some of the richest farming land in the United States, government agriculture experts said, and the devastation and damage will amount to many millions.

In Arkansas, excluding the Texarkana district, engineers said 4,064,480 acres had been inundated, including one of the leading timber sections of the country.

More than 2,000,000 acres are flooded in the rich delta region of northern Mississippi. The delta is considered the most productive cotton region in the country.

In the New Madrid section of Missouri, also a cotton and timber region, army engineers estimated 9,000 acres under water.

The ankle of Sarver's leg was twisted out of the socket and the bone protruded through the flesh, the leg being fractured in three places. He was rushed to the Dixon hospital, and given immediate attention. Miss Moser, who was thrown from the motorcycle, sustained bruises on both knees, but was otherwise unharmed. She was taken to the hospital where her injuries were dressed and later removed to her home. The attending physician today was unable to state whether or not Sarver's left leg could be saved.

HEAD "STICK-UP" GANG IS THOT TAKEN

Sheriff Helps Chicago Officers Get Man at Sublette

Sergeant Kilgore and Detectives Tobin, Green, Gannon, Sheldon and Jicka of the Chicago detective bureau were in Dixon Sunday forenoon on a search which had extended from the west side of Chicago to Sublette for Walter Michaels, who according to the officers, was believed to be the leader of a "stick-up" gang which has been working effectively for several weeks. The officers with Sheriff Ward Miller and deputies went to Sublette where Michaels was placed under arrest at his home, shortly before noon. He was brought to Dixon and after the dinner hour was returned to Chicago with the officers. Michaels was implicated in the stick-up tangle at Daniel Moylan and Willard Decker, both of whom were arrested following a free-for-all fight in a west side saloon Tuesday night, according to the Chicago officers. An argument was said to have started in the saloon between the three men which concerned the loading of two revolvers into a hand of stick-ups and the fight ensued when Michaels refused to turn the "rods" over to Decker and Moylan. Michaels was terribly beaten and bruised about the face and head, a cupid having been used in the fight, opening a gash on Michaels' head.

Assaults Captured
Michels' ran into the street and gave a "hold-up" alarm, the officers claimed, and his assailants escaped through an alley, only to be taken later by detectives as they were packing up their belongings in their flat, preparatory to leaving the city. Both men carried revolvers, the detectives stated. They are alleged to have made statements following their arrest which implicated Michaels as the leader of a "stick-up" gang which had been specializing in drug stores, restaurants, tea rooms and small grocery stores. The officers stated that already 62 jobs had been checked to the gang and both Moylan and Michaels had been identified by several of their victims.

The trio are said to have been located in Miami, Fla., for some time and to have gone to Chicago about the first of the year, where they soon became active on the west side. Michaels had been employed in several places as a soda dispenser. Michaels however, denied any knowledge of the hold-ups when questioned at the county jail here, but admitted having been in several of the places named where hold-ups had been staged.

HISTORY, GROWTH OF THE AP TOLD BY PRES. NOYES
Great Struggle for Co-operative News Organization Told

New York, April 25.—(AP)—Frank B. Noyes, President of The Associated Press, was the principal speaker at the annual luncheon of its members today. His address dealt with the history of the great effort to establish a nation-wide cooperative news gathering organization operating without profit, its early struggles, its ultimate triumph, and the ideals and principles that dominate it today. Beginning with the first attempt in 1850, the speaker traced the history of cooperative newsgathering down to 1893 when the final break took place between a former eastern organization, then called "The United Press," which was proprietary and commercial in character, and the old Western Associated Press which was mutual and not profit making, and which that year was reorganized under the present name of The Associated Press with Melville E. Stone as general manager. In speaking of the desperate struggle that followed between the two organizations, Mr. Noyes said:

Question of Control.
"The issue was this: Shall the newspapers of the United States be at the mercy of a privately owned news collecting and distributing organization—at its mercy not only as concerns a money tribute, but, of much more importance, at its mercy as to the news received—whether it should be honest or perverted, impartial or biased, whether it should be influenced by the interests and the opinions of its owners, and the press of the United States and the people of the United States be the result of the unrestrained will of individuals, or an individual, so far as press association news was concerned."

This was a thrilling battery, said Mr. Noyes, and shortly the newspapers of the United States be at the mercy of a privately owned news collecting and distributing organization—at its mercy not only as concerns a money tribute, but, of much more importance, at its mercy as to the news received—whether it should be honest or perverted, impartial or biased, whether it should be influenced by the interests and the opinions of its owners, and the press of the United States and the people of the United States be the result of the unrestrained will of individuals, or an individual, so far as press association news was concerned."

End of Rival
"Do not understand that this creed obtained instant acceptance," said Mr. Noyes. "Indeed even today there is distinct dissent both in principle and practice and within a few years the head of what is generally regarded as the leading privately owned news distributing organization, in a considered public address, said: 'Generally speaking, the point of view of the reporters is only the point of view of the paper.' Elaborating this, the speaker said the inevitability and desirability of a reported writing of the day's happenings with a 'point of view,' instancing that one newspaper with capitalistic leanings and another in sympathy with the rank and file must, and the size of the in these sympathies in their news treatment of events. This speaker went on to say: 'And how does this apply to the press association business? Just as any other strictly newspaper publication applies to the press association business—the same—only more so.'"

Mr. Noyes here interjected that the Associated Press is founded on a totally different doctrine. Fortunately, he said, no reported of the Associated Press can write to suit the point of view of that organization, for it has no point of view of its own and no intelligent could define a composite point of view of its members.

In considerable detail Mr. Noyes described the activities of Mr. Stone in building up an independent service of world-wide news, including the making of contracts with the leading world agencies. He described also methods of financing the new organization through a guaranty fund and an assessment plan.

Praised Two Pioneers.
Next the fight was carried to the east and Mr. Noyes told of the crusading done by his associates and himself at a time when there was great intensity of feeling in newspaperdom. Victor F. Lawson of Chicago and Mr. Stone devoted all of their time to making new converts to the cause of cooperative news gathering, working, said Mr. Noyes, as they never would have worked for any private interest of their own. Continuing:

"Each new convert secured became in turn a crusader himself and it was no uncommon occurrence for twelve or fifteen busy newspaper men to lay aside their work to try mass persuasion on some other newspaper man not yet decided in our favor. Day by day, month by month, year by year, our membership grew and the number of clients of the United Press dwindled."

"This process of accretion on the one side and attrition on the other went on steadily and in 1896 and early in 1897 various fruitless conferences between the opposing leaders took place but the conflict continued until April 8, 1897, when by overwhelming vote of the directors of the United Press that concern threw up the sponge."

"There followed a wild scramble to secure membership in the Associated Press and our officers and directors were elected. No further runs on the banks are expected."

SNYDER-GRAY MURDER CASE PROGRESSING

Prosecutor Detailed Story of Death of N. Y. Art Editor

New York, April 25.—(AP)—Warren Schneider, brother of the art editor, for whose murder Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray are on trial, was called as the first witness today. His appearance followed a half hour opening statement by the state and after defense counsel had waived rights to opening statements at the time.

Schneider, who has retained the original spelling of the family name, established the fact of his brother's death, as did Dr. H. W. Neill, medical examiner.

In his opening statement, District Attorney Newsome said "Snyder was slain for $50,000 had been taken out on a parole March 7 when 'Mrs. Snyder met her lover, Gray, after Gray had bought a sash weight and chlorform in Kingston, N. Y."

Two Insurance Policies
Prior to that two insurance policies for $50,000 had been taken out on Snyder, who never knew about those policies.

The sash weight, an iron bludgeon about a foot long with which it is believed Snyder was killed, went in as evidence.

Dr. A. O. Gettler, toxicologist, testified grain alcohol and chlorform were found in Snyder's brain.

The session was marked by almost constant objections of defense counsel.

Dr. Neill said that the blows on the head would not have caused death, but that the strangulation would have.

When S. L. Miller of Gray's counsel started cross examination of Dr. Neill, lawyers for Mrs. Snyder objected to his question as to whether examination indicated a struggle. The court sustained the objection, but later the question was asked again and the physician said he saw no evidence of a struggle.

OVER 200 WILL ATTEND BANQUET HERE TOMORROW

Christian Church to be Scene of Fellowship Meeting

With two hundred forty-four reservations in early this morning for the County Fellowship Banquet to be held at the Dixon Christian church, it is already assured that this will be one of the greatest assemblages of the leadership in the churches of the disciples ever held in this community. While the number of congregations to be represented is much smaller, and the size of the individual churches not so great as in central Illinois and in the city centers, Director Geo. C. Aydelott, who has personally supervised all seventy such banquets in the Crusade, asserts that the co-operation nowhere has been more cordial and complete than in Dixon.

The local dinner committee, supervised by Mrs. Harry W. Stauffer, faces most happily and confidently the delightful task of making the feasters comfortable and welcome in limited dining quarters, while Merton W. Squibb, as reception chairman, will see that the old stone church's hospitable doors are open to their widest. An eleven-piece orchestra will entertain the assembling guests, and a mixed and a ladies' quartette, together with abundant choruses, will sing during the meal.

The speakers assured are: Dr. Stephen E. Fisher of Champaign; Pastor S. H. Zenz of Oakridge, and Prof. George E. Moore of Joliet, with the possible addition of Dr. H. H. Peters of Bloomington and Mrs. Mary Hoover Jones of Eureka. Dr. George C. Aydelott, director of the Crusade, will preside.

New Type of Criminal Makes Debut in Chicago

Chicago, April 25.—(AP)—Underworld argot has a new term "muscle man" a new variety of criminal to whom police are giving consideration. A "muscle man" is one of a band of criminals who has taken to the kidnapping, extortion and robbery of persons engaged in some illicit enterprise. The field of the "muscle man" has gained many recent recruits because the victims, by reason of their own practices, cannot "squeal."

So long as the "muscle men" confine their handiwork to other underworld figures the police are not particularly concerned, but the success of this new type of criminal has prompted the fear that wealthy men in respectable pursuits will be next.

Washington, April 25.—(AP)—The owner of leased property padlocked under the prohibition law can proceed in the courts to have the lease cancelled under a construction of the law handed down today by the supreme court.

Deciding a lease cancellation case from New York, the court upheld a provision of the law making cancellation possible where liquor has been unlawfully sold. The court held that under such circumstances, a jury trial could not be demanded.

The property in question was leased from the Paul Mall Realty Corporation by James Dugan. OREGON MAN SHOT SUNDAY NEAR BYRON

Chef at Black Hawk Trail Club Held in Oregon Jail

BULLETIN
Lynman Hambell of Oregon, who was shot in a quarrel at a road house near Byron yesterday afternoon, was said to be resting quite comfortably at the Dixon public hospital this afternoon. The shot, which either missed, struck the breast bone and passed through his body, it was reported, but his chances for recovery were said to be very good.

Lynman Hambell of Oregon, a laborer employed in the Silica company's plant there, is in the Dixon public hospital suffering from a bullet wound from a 22 caliber revolver received at the Black Hawk Trail Club near Byron on route 2 Sunday afternoon about 4:30. John McKay, chef at the club, which is said to be owned and operated by Sam Zyvas and Eva Austin, is under arrest and is being held at the Ogle county jail after admitting having fired the shot; and Hambell's three companions, Leo Nolan, Raymond Streets and William Bouker, are also being detained by order of State's Attorney Martin V. Peterman as eye witnesses of the shooting.

Sam Good of Oregon with deputies arrived at the scene of the shooting a short time after the affair. The Black Hawk Trail Club is located about one and one-half miles south of Byron on state highway route 2. It was said, and was taken in custody by the officers who responded to a telephone call.

State's Attorney Peterman opened an investigation and this continued until late last night.

Stories Are Varied.
The Ogle county state's attorney stated this morning that it appeared in the stories coming to him, that Hambell and his three companions went to the road house yesterday afternoon. It is said that Hambell to the club is gained by membership card and that the quartette from Oregon not having cards, were being evicted from the place. McKay, the chef, having a hand in the eviction, Hambell is said to have invited McKay to come out of the building to fight.

From this point, the stories of what happened differ somewhat. It is said that McKay claims that Hambell reached for his pocket as if to draw a gun, and McKay having taken a revolver with him before leaving the road house, opened fire. One bullet is said to have penetrated Hambell's right breast. Other rumors reaching the state's attorney's office were to the effect that Hambell and his friends were under the influence of liquor.

To Grand Jury Today.

McKay was taken into the office of state's Attorney Peterman this morning where his finger prints were taken with the purpose of making further investigation into his past. He is said to have come from Virginia, originally, but has been a transient for some time, working occasionally at McKay's state's Attorney Peterman was making every effort to complete his preliminary investigation into the shooting with a view of presenting the case to the April grand jury which convenes in Oregon this afternoon.

In response to a query as to his plan of action against the many road houses in Ogle county, State's Attorney Peterman stated today, "I will take the matter up as rapidly as the sheriff furnishes evidence against these places."

Other witnesses examined by the Ogle county state's attorney are said to have stated that Hambell made no move to reach for his pockets during the quarrel, but that McKay fired point blank at his victim. Hambell is said to have been drinking and threatened to give McKay a beating after he had been ordered out of the road house.

Walsh of Massachusetts addressed a gathering of 1,500 Knights of Columbus here Sunday evening celebrating the silver jubilee of the local K. of C. organization. "How long," asked Walsh, "are we going to permit persons who call themselves 100 percent Americans to flick from us our supposedly inalienable rights? How long are we going to permit a spy system of government to take the place of a government of liberty?" He criticized what he termed unreasonable restrictions against well-meaning immigrants from other lands, defended the patriotism of Catholic jurists, governors and legislators, paying particularly glowing compliments to Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York and Senator Thomas I. Walsh of Montana. The Massachusetts solon made no direct reference to the recent controversy between Gov. Smith and Charles C. Marshall of New York.

After an hour and three quarters of really great fun, the party in good condition. Here they undressed their packs and prepared their oats. After several attempts a good fire was built and the bacon and hot dogs were browned to a crisp. Then after the bacon had been cooked, the party proceeded to show everybody what a fine egg juggler he was. He's an expert, to say the least.

When all had eaten and the camp had been cleared up, Sec. Keller came out and joined the crowd. After several pictures were taken, the party over to the ball diamond where the Cardinals decisively defeated the Hawks. The ball game was interrupted once and completely forgotten while Harold Higby tried to run down a speller.

Small Vetoed Bill to Help Rockford

Springfield, Ill., April 25—(AP)—Gov. Len Small today vetoed a bill introduced by Senator H. S. Hines, Rockford, providing that city councils may take real property already devoted to a public use for another different use, when in so doing no interference was made with the existing use of the property.

The measure was one designed to meet a Rockford situation and would have permitted the removal of the Rockford public library to enable the carrying forward of a street widening project.

The governor's veto was made up on the advice of Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom who pointed out that it would conflict with certain provisions of the Bailey aircraft landing bill, already passed by the legislature and signed by the governor.

Both were emergency measures.

were very busy for a considerable time in clearing away difficulties. They had definitely adopted a policy that no reprisals were to be exacted and exerted themselves strenuously to the end that no established newspaper should be left outside the fold. In this effort they were extraordinarily successful, as any number here today can testify.

For a short time life in the Associated Press was apparently tranquil and so far as we knew was tranquil, but a very large sized cloud was just beyond the horizon. The Chicago Inter-Ocean had been charged with violation of the by-laws—the section in question having been copied by the courts in several jurisdictions. Persisting in the violation, the Inter-Ocean was expelled, whereupon it sought reinstatement through the Illinois courts. The decision of the lower court and of the appellate court were in favor of the Associated Press, and the case was carried to the supreme court of the state.

On Feb. 13, 1900, out of a clear sky came an astounding decision by the Illinois Supreme Court. Although not mentioned in the pleadings, the Illinois corporation was declared a common carrier—apparently principally on the ground that in the original charter some one had entirely unaccountably inserted a clause authorizing the insertion of telegraph lines—a procedure that had not even been contemplated so far as any of us knew. The court held, however, that this potential power, even though unexercised, made the organization a common carrier and that any applicant must be served.

For a time confusion reigned. Suits were filed to compel the Associated Press of Illinois to render service to non members. Counter suits were threatened by members in other states if their contract rights were invaded.

OLD MASTERS

When I am dead and sister to the dust;
When no more avidly I drink the wine
Of human love; when the pale Pros-erpine
Has covered me with poppies, and cold rust
Has cut my lyre-strings, and the sun has thrust
Me underground to nourish the world-vine,
Men shall discover these old songs
of mine,
And say: This woman lived—as poets
must!
This woman lived and wore life as a sword
To conquer wisdom; this dead woman
read
In the sealed Book of Love and understood
The meanings. Then the sails of faith she spread
And faring out for regions unexplored, Went singing down the River of the Dead.

—Elsa Barker: "When I am Dead."
Cyrus McCormick
Weds "Working Girl"

Chicago, April 25.—(AP)—When the bride of Cyrus H. McCormick, returns from her European honeymoon with the chairman of the board of the International Harvester Company,
she will step into a place of paramount social importance in Chicago.
So successfully guarded were plans for their marriage last Friday at Dublin, N. H., that not even brothers and sisters of Miss Holt knew of her intentions. Mr. McCormick is 67 and his bride 45.

Miss Holt had been employed by the International Harvester Company eight or nine years. When Mr.
McCormick shifted from the presidency to the chairmanship of the board, he transferred her to take charge of his personal affairs.
She is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Holt, Chicago plumbers. Probably no "working girl" ever wed so wealthy a man as Mr. McCormick. Even the most conservative estimates place his wealth at $50,000,000—"see more".
Mr. McCormick's name has been linked with big business since 1879.
He is a son of Cyrus Hall McCormick, inventor of the reaper. His first wife, a leader of Chicago society, died in 1921.

Sacred Concert Greatly Enjoyed

The choir of the Embury Methodist church, Freeport, in vestments of purple and white, with their pastor, Rev. W. L. Collin, came to the Methodist church in Dixon Sunday, and at 8:30, gave a most enjoyable sacred concert to a packed church. Their ensemble singing would be hard to equal, save in the choirs of the larger cities, Chicago or New York. The volume of harmony is powerful, yet wonderfully sweet and pure. A most delightful feature of the afternoon was the solo by Mrs. Frances Barrett, "Open the Gates of the Temple," displaying a beautiful, sweet high voice in the expressive rendition of this favorite selection. That this choir will always be doubly welcome in Dixon is an assured fact. The work of the quartet, and that of the director and the organist was very fine.
The sermon by Rev. Collin was an inspiration to all present.

ELECTION H. S. P. T.
ASSOCIATION
The annual election of officers will feature the meeting of the High School Parent Teachers Association to be held at the north side high school building Wednesday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock. Reports from the recent state convention will also be given, therefore all members of the association are asked to attend.

WERE DELIGHTFULLY ENTERTAINED IN ROCKFORD
Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Dugwiler of Rockford, formerly of Dixon, entertained a company of friends Sunday at her home, the guests including Mr.
and Mrs. Leslie Smith, Miss Margaret O'Hare, Arthur O'Hare, Miss Helen Fulley, Miss Ruth Knapp, Harold Fisher of Dixon, and Charles Dons of Sterling.

CLOTHES FOR INFANT NEEDED
Through the Associated Charities, a call is given for clothing for an infant, and anyone having clothing to give to this cause will please communicate with Mrs. J. M. McCleary, phone 658, who will give the particulars.

PRACTICAL CLUB TO MEET TUESDAY
The Practical Club will meet Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs.
Leon Hart.

Menus for the Family

BREAKFAST—Grapefruit juice, cereal, cream, baked eggs, crisp
toast, milk coffee.

LUNCHEON—Baked carrots, dandelion sandwiches, cottage pudding with maple sauce, milk, tea.

DINNER—Baked spaghetti and veal, spinach and egg salad, Parker house rolls, fudge cake, shredded fresh pineapple, milk, coffee.

The dinner meat dish uses a cheap cut of veal to advantage. Mushrooms can be added for savor although they are not necessary.
Tender uncooked dandelion leaves are combined with cottage cheese, nuts and mayonnaise to make the sandwiches.

Baked Carrots
Four medium sized carrots, 1 desertspoon sugar, 4 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1-2 cup cream, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, Molasses 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, buttered crumbs.

Wash and scrape carrots and cut in half-inch dice. Put into a casserole with sugar and 1 tablespoon butter, and add boiling water to cover.
Cover and bake about 30 minutes.
Drain, reserving the liquor. Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add 1 cup cream and sugar. Cook, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Stir in lemon juice and yolks of eggs well beaten. Season with salt and pepper and pour over carrots in casserole. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs and put into a moderately hot oven to make thoroughly hot and to brown crumbs. Serve from casserole.

MISS TALLEY AND DISHWASHING

By Olive Roberts Barton

Marion Talley, the eighteen-year-old prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who started the world a year ago by her voice, has written an article about her life struggle for success and, finally, her debut in New York.
It is full of sermons, her simply related story. It tells of a little girl's love of music, the modest way the family accepted the praise of great divas who heard her sing, their strict economy in order to give her lessons, the frugal manner of spending the sum raised by friends to educate her properly, and the present simple, almost austere, manner of living in a New York apartment. They have lived there since the night of her great success.

She tells of their dislike of ostentation, their inborn habits of strict economy and above all their love of work. Her father is still at work as a telegraph operator in Kansas City.
Economy seems to be the keynote of the entire story. As a little girl she was taught to do housework. Her music was not allowed to interfere with the regime of a well-managed home, and part of that regime was to teach its daughters housekeeping.
Now that she has reached the top of the ladder and become one of the world's greatest singers, she still wishes to wipe the dishes, make beds and do other things in the way of light housework.

That part of it is as pathetic as it is amusing. I think that the veriest crank on girl training will agree with me that Miss Talley's rather nice little biology for being so great is not necessary. And we do not wish her or expect her to wipe dishes —unless she prefers that pastime to other forms of indoor sports. It is enough that she can give the world something beautiful that it wants and needs.
She has worked slavishly for years to make the best of her God-given voice. Surely that is enough! And if the world wishes to pay her home-age and make obeisance, she would give it that privilege. We need things to look up to and people to look up to. And we like to clothe them with all the glamour we can hang on them. It hurts no one I am sure.

The WOMAN'S DAY by AILENE SUMNER

BY AILENE SUMNER
For a long time the tired business man has realized as he reads his evening paper that something was lacking.

The other night it came to him.
He glanced into the kitchen, paper in hand, and demanded of the "little woman" busily dishing the steak in mushrooms.

We may be doing wrong to the tired business man's grammar, but not at all to his idea. Both the tired business man and other kinds of men, and women as well, have begun realizing of late that the expression "woman movement" has practically vanished, and that no longer do we see our papers pictured with marching women, banners across the sky, and sometimes upholding venomous placards demanding this right and that right.

No longer do we see headlines proclaiming the forcible feeding of Mrs.
So-and-so, jailed for picketing the White House and yelling that shed pull the president's nose if he didn't do right by our Nells.

Don't Satisfy
Even the girl answer that women achieved that for which they picketed, woman suffrage, does not quite satisfy. For everyone knows that even since 1920 and the victory of the woman suffrage movement with the 19th amendment, one has heard rumblings and mutterings of "the woman movement."

But whether you "see it in the papers" or not, whether it's said in parades and banners or otherwise, there is a woman movement today.
If you doubt it, just become a card to the National Woman's Party, doing business on Capitol Hill, right where it can watch out the front windows who goes in and out of Congress.

You know, of course, that this party is devoting its energies to a 20th amendment, which is known as the National Equal Rights amendment—a simple little amendment reading "men and women shall have equal rights throughout the United States and every place subject to its jurisdiction."

Equal Rights?
Maybe you think that they have "equal rights" for which they picketed. The party has been delving in the law library of the Supreme Court for months. Here are some of the startling discoveries just disclosed:

Papas of Georgia and Maryland can legally will away the custody of their children from the mothers.
In three states, Michigan, New York and Massachusetts, the minor child need give its earnings to its father only—

In Florida
A father of Florida may collect damages for "the mental pain and suffering" of a mother whose child has been injured or killed.

In many states married women may not legally sign certain papers.
A Texan husband may divorce his wife for one infidelity, but she may not divorce him unless she can prove that he is living "in a state of infidelity."

In many states a woman cannot legally own the clothes which her husband buys her, but is entitled to only "the use of them."

Recent Findings
The law of Georgia says that a wife's earnings belong to her husband. Four pages of legal size paper, typed single space, are filled with similar recent findings of the legal research department of the National Woman's Party.

The findings are put forth merely as reason why the proposed 20th amendment is necessary.
The party points with shame to equal rights provisions in the constitutions of other countries. Austria, Czechoslovakia, Free and Hanseatic
City of Danzig, Estonia, Germany, Lithuania and Prussia have equal rights constitutional provisions, all adopted since 1919.

Night Work
The party is especially riled at 16 states and their laws which forbid women, but not men, to engage in certain occupations at night. This is what today's "Woman's movement" means—no discrimination between women and men, not even discrimination which is shown for women's supposed "own good."

"I don't want to change to sit on,"
says the woman of today's "Woman movement"—"unless you make him sit down too."

Dental health is a vital factor in

ABOUT POLICEMEN.

It was just a little one-paragraph story in the paper the other day. Perhaps you missed it entirely. It told about a policeman in an eastern city who roused the inmates of a burning tenement, called the fire department and then sacrificed his own life trying to rescue a cripple who could not save himself.

Little items like that aren't unusual. Such things happen in every city.

We all have our grievances at policemen, now and then. But it doesn't hurt to remember that the policeman must always be ready to risk his life in our service. Every now and then he takes one risk too many—and loses.

Keep that in mind the next time you start expressing yourself about the bluecoats.

A DRAMATIC CAREER.

W. E. Woodward, one of the biographers who wrote a new life of Washington during the past year, is going to tackle U. S. Grant next.

"Grant," says Woodward, "was one of the most dramatic of our heroes. At the age of 38 he was an obscure and beaten man, sitting silently in a country store. His opportunities were all apparently behind him.

"Who would have dreamed, at the beginning of the Civil War, that this seedy, discouraged failure was to become leader of the Union armies and president for two terms?"

We don't know whether Woodward is going to make Grant's biography "human" in the way he tried to make that of Washington. But we agree with him that he has an unusually interesting subject.

WAGES FOR WIVES.

Wives should receive regular wages, something in the nature of an allowance each week, a teacher of home economics advocates. That's something like proposing high school education for all holders of master degrees. . . . Nowadays though some of the wives prefer the wages without the husbands. . . . What chance would the radio and phonograph have for a hearing in this country if the wives went on strike for higher pay? . . . In England there are 1,700,000 more women than men, according to the actuaries. Quite a serious unemployment situation. . . . We know one gentleman from Edinburgh who even refuses to tip his hat.

ROAD HOGS.

The regrettable accident that befell Henry Ford—if it really was, as police now seem to believe, an accident—serves as one more reminder of the menace represented by what is commonly called the "road hog."

The flash of temper that makes a driver swerve in front of the man who resisted his effort to pass him is a trait to which no motorist should ever give way.

It may give you a feeling of satisfaction to "cut in" sharply; but it may also cause a death.

There is no excuse for it—ever.

HER DEFENSE.

Mrs. Ruth Snyder, who goes on trial for the murder of her husband soon, has ordered several new dresses for her appearance in court.

Thus it appears that once more a lady defendant is placing reliance on her dressmaker as well as on her lawyer.

Well, you can't blame her. It's a fine defense—charm. Read the long, long list of pretty ladies who have been acquitted of murder if you don't believe it.

QUOITS VS. QUARTS.

Exercise and the outdoors are substitutes for wild parties, a psychiatrist advises. One of these evenings when you attend a party you won't know whether a man is asking you for quarts or quots. . . . No party will be complete without a couple of disci on the hip. . . . When somebody suggests a neckling affair, propose instead a chinning contest. Thus the horizontal bar soon will supplant the punchbowl in some of our best families. . . . But if the outdoors is a good antidote for spooning, then those park benches certainly fail to react.

WHAT PRICE LAUGHTER?

Gilbert Swan, who writes entertainingly of New York's fads and foibles, tells of a prominent musical comedy star who refuses to laugh heartily at anything, even the most side-splitting joke.

She explains that laughing heartily is bad for the voice. Desiring to retain her voice, she abstains from laughter.

Somehow this seems to us like a dreadfully high price to pay. Laughter is humanity's one weapon against unkind, resistless fates. Life without laughter must be a savorless sort of affair.

Is anything worth giving up laughter?

Mother and Daughter Week offers an opportunity for mother to stay at home some night and get acquainted with her family.

They looked at each other through the books, and then, jumped up and started out again. "Oh, can I go along with you?" the scholar asked the bunch. And Scotty said, "Well, as a rule, we'd tell you yes, but, off to school you'd better go, or you'll get spanked. Now there's a happy bunch."

The lad said, "Well, I guess you're right. I wish I was a Tinymite. I'll bet you have a heap of fun just playing all day long. Some day when all my work is done, I too, am going to have a fine fun. But now I'll hurry off to school, so I'll not get in wrong."

The wee lad scampered over the hill and for a moment all was still. Then Clowdy said, "Oh, look ahead! What's in that great big tree?" Almost as quickly as he spoke, the bunch all reached a great big oak and when they looked up in the leaves, the whole bunch said, "Oh, gee."

A little baby swung with ease, just like the acorns on the trees. Said Copsy, "Why, that's Rock-a-bye! And soon it's going to fall. I'll stand here right below the tree and all the rest of you join me. Then when the baby tumbles it will not be hurt at all."

Just then the wind began to blow. It rocked the baby to and fro. Wee Clowdy said, "Now get all set to catch the little child. I think it has begun to slip, and soon will have a downward trip. Say, if the baby's mom knew this, 'twould surely make her wild."

And then the little tot fell down, but never landed on the ground. The hand of Tines caught it and 'twas safe as it could be. The child wove up and said, "A-gee!" And thus the Tines promptly knew that it would rather be with them than way up in the tree.

SAINT and SINNER

When Bates answered came, the audience, largely sympathetic with Cherry, breathed an audible sigh of relief. For Bates said, very distinctly: "Miss Cherry used the present sense in every reference to Mr. Cluny on the night of November 25."

"Now, Mr. Bates, you have sworn that as soon as Miss Cherry was safely married to Mr. Wiley her agitation, her nervousness vanished, and that she was gay and light-hearted? You are sure of that point?"

"I am," Bates modulated, and his pale blue eyes blinked at Cherry behind his gold-rimmed spectacles. The girl smiled, fluttered her hand in a charming little gesture to show her gratitude.

Mr. Bates, when you took the news to Mr. and Mrs. Wiley the next morning, that is, the morning of Friday, November 26, what was Mrs. Wiley's expression and manner upon learning of the death of Mr. Cluny?"

Churchill asked boldly. "She was 'horror-struck,'" Bates answered simply.

"Surprised?" Churchill drove home his point. "Yes, sir. Dumbfounded, horror-struck. I should say."

Banning objected furiously to this line of questioning, but the judge sustained Churchill, who went on triumphantly:

"Did her surprise seem genuine to you, Mr. Bates?"

"You have been a minister of the gospel for how long, Mr. Bates?"

"For forty-one years," Mr. Bates answered with a slight flush of pride on his waxed old cheeks.

"You consider yourself a good judge of human nature?" Churchill asked sympathetically.

"I do."

"You liked Miss Cherry, believed what she said?" Churchill probed softly.

Before Banning could phrase his objection, the gentle voice of a preacher had answered clearly, "I did—and do."

"That is all, Mr. Bates," Churchill announced in a satisfied voice, as if the witness had been his, rather than the state's.

But both Cherry and Churchill looked far less happy during the examination of the farmer, Jefferson Anderson, by Banning.

Anderson, a tall, stoop-shouldered, gaunt-faced man, with wiry mustaches, and broken, yellow teeth, showed himself almost bitterly inimical toward Cherry from the beginning of his examination. Under Banning's questioning, he told how Cherry and Chris had applied at a quarter to eleven for shelter for the night, how he had given them the "spare room," which he was in the habit of renting to transient guests, with meals included; how Cherry and Chris had retired immediately, refusing his wife's offer of a "pick up supper."

"What was the defendant's manner and attitude during the negotiations for a room?" Banning asked.

"Well, I can't say much about her attitude," the farmer said sourly, "but her manners was pretty bad—complained about the room being cold and the widow being nailed shut—made me get a claw hammer and pry it open before she'd go to bed in it, spite of the fact that she was harping on it being so cold and all."

"Did she and her husband look like a happy bride and groom to you?" Banning smiled.

"Can't say as they did," the farmer grunted. "You mean, did they hug and kiss in front of me and the wife, the didn't."

The judge rapped sharply with his gavel as a woman giggled hysterically.

"All right, Mr. Anderson. Now tell the jury where your own bedroom is located in reference to the room occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Wiley," Banning directed.

"Next to it," the farmer answered laconically.

"What sort of partition divides the two rooms?"

In anticipation of sensational developments, reporters summoned messenger boys, who came running, to hover over the backs of the writers' chairs, awaiting the sheaves of yellow copy paper.

WHEN A MISSISSIPPI LEVEE BREAKS

NEA Flying Cameraman Obtains Remarkable Pictures Showing Raging River Actually Breaking Protecting Wall and Inundating New Madrid, Mo.

This remarkable airplane view shows the main levee of the Mississippi, near New Madrid, Mo., actually breaking away under the force of flood waters. All the pictures on this page were obtained by William Day, photographer for the Memphis Press-Scimitar and NEA Service, who is risking his life daily to fly over the vast flooded area and get the latest pictures for NEA clients.

Coming back in his plane a half hour later, the NEA cameraman finds the break much wider as the rushing water eats away the sides of the break. The gap, at first small, soon spreads and the full force of the Mississippi spills out through the hole and across the countryside. The broken ends of the levee are shown to the left and right of the picture. Through this gap, the water rushed on to New Madrid and the picture below shows what happened next.

Games won by daring on the paths by masterly pitching and by the bat, went down in the records today.

There is no longer a Ty Cobb for Detroit, but a play of the type he made famous was flashed by two Tigers yesterday in a game won by a hair from Chicago.

A spectacular double steal by Fothergill and Blue made safe a 4-3 victory for Detroit.

Grover Cleveland Alexander defeated Vic Aldridge of the Pirates in the day's pitching classic. The Cardinal old master granted six hits as his team won 2-1.

Two homers cracked from Yank bats in their 6-2 victory over Washington. One of them was number 54 for Ruth.

The Giants won in Yankee style from the Braves by 12-8.

Pitchers had a hard time against St. Louis at Cleveland where the Browns trained their guns on three before the game was tied 3-3.

Carl Mays, old side wheeler, faced too big a handicap. He took charge in the first with one out, three on and three runs already in. He held the Cubs to 6 hits the rest of the game and slammed out three hits, one a triple. The Cubs won 5-3.

Wild throws and nuffs meant defeat for the shaky Brooklyn team, this time 5 to 1 at the hands of the Phillies.

J. L. Lewis, president of United Mine Workers, suggests that federal councils of Churches of Christ in America approve miners' plan for stabilizing bituminous industry.

Curtis H. McCormick, 67, chairman of International Harvester Co., marries Miss Alice H. Holt at Dublin, N. H. They leave Boston for honeymoon abroad.

And here is the result of the levee break—the town of New Madrid, entirely under flood water. A strip of levee still holding is shown to the right. This scene is typical of millions of acres and scores of towns throughout the Mississippi valley, where the Red Cross faces the greatest task it has had to undertake since the war.

Kindly, Well-to-Do Lawyer, Author of Letters to Governor

New York—From the quiet, haphazard, thick-carpeted library of a stately home in New York's aristocratic 54th street came the questioning theories on the relation of religion to politics by which Charles Clinton Marshall, retired lawyer, shot Governor Al Smith into heightened national prominence.

Marshall's "open letters" to Smith, raising the issue whether an adherent to the Catholic religion properly might discharge presidential duties, were written not by a sleek, frock-coated politician but by an elderly student—mild, dignified, somewhat of a sentimentalist.

For decades Marshall was just one of New York's many practicing lawyers. He retired about 15 years ago—retired to his library.

Never a Politician

"Politics" I am not and never have been, affirmed either actively or nominally with any political organization," he told me. "Politics has nothing to do with the questions I have raised. My concern is solely and simply that of an American citizen and a student."

scint, and the annulment of the Vanderbilt-Mariborough marriage.

Intends No Reflections.

"Now, here in the United States I see potentially embodied in Governor Smith and his presidential prospects the issue of whether the American principle of universal and complete religious tolerance is to continue. "That the man in question is Gov. Smith is incidental. I do not intend my views to be reflections upon him or anybody's candidacy for public office. He is an admirable governor."

"Vote for him? No, I never did, but that was not because of religious considerations. I can venture no forecast as to his chances of nomination or election; I am not a follower of present-day politics. About what sort of president he would make, I have no idea whatsoever."

"From the present discussion I could hope for no more than the dawn of an era during which the Church of Rome should begin to amend those of its tenets as variance with civil and religious liberty."

Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE

Editor's Note: This is the 17th chapter in the story of a former doughboy who, going back to France as an advance guard of the "Second A. E. F.," is revisiting the scenes which he and his buddies saw during the war.

CHAPTER XVII

Some said it was the MP's—some others said it was the boys who fought the Battle of Paris.

But—credit should go where it is due.

In Rheims is M. Albert Floquet. M. Floquet is an assistant manager of a large champagne establishment. He was in Rheims in 1914, when the Germans first came through.

You understand, the Germans had little opposition in their first drive toward Paris. Marshal Joffre adopted tactics involving an elastic retreat. Marshal Joffre knew about the wine caves of Rheims and Epernay, and now known to thousands of many other cities in the Champagne Americans who fought through them.

So the Germans came on. They shelled Rheims, and they shelled Epernay. Capture was a simple matter as the terrorized citizens fled.

Then, for three or four days, the offensive slackened. This slackening gave time to the harassed French and English troops, who stabilized a line on the Marne. And when the Germans took up their work of going on to Paris—

Well, as M. Floquet expressed it, "They went on with a wine bottle in one hand and a rifle in the other."

The caves at Epernay were looted of vintages up to 50 years of age. Also were the caves around Rheims. And, according to tacticians who "know their drill regulations, champagne and offensives cannot be conducted together."

General Mangin did some heroic work at Verdun. The Americans crashed through the Argonne Forest. The English were catapults at the Scheldt Canal. And, no doubt, everyone helped to win the war. But the wine caves of Rheims and Epernay in which millions of bottles are stored away today, delayed the German offensive in 1914.

So—Who knows? Who knows? Maybe—

TOMORROW: The Chemin des Dames.

When she does, the whole Christian world will be one with her, and her policy will be in harmony with the modern state.

New York always has been Marshall's home. He belongs to no clubs. Though no longer active, he retains his membership in the bar.

The ornamentation of his home clearly reflects artistic tastes, and the means to gratify them.

John D. Lives Nearly

A short distance away is the famous 54th street residence of John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Marshall has met Smith personally only once, he said. This was at a bar association dinner where Smith made an address.

In retirement, Marshall has devoted much of his study to canonical law—the rules and regulations of the various religious denominations. His own religious faith is Protestant Episcopalian.

On several occasions he has written articles for the more serious magazines.

From this quiet, kindly, relatively obscure man, self-form organized politics, came what to pro-Smith and anti-Smith politicians alike is one of the sensations of the year.

Charist sympathizer in Chicago slaps face of Alexander Kerensky at banquet; general fight ensues.

Flashes of Life

(BY THE AP)

Washington—Richard Morgan, telephone clerk, and his betrothed, the former Frances Dupont of Fairview, Pa., who eloped Saturday to Belair, Md., have been starting their honeymoon just like lots of young folks, seeing Washington monument and other sights.

Moscow—Eight thousand persons are to be employed for nine months in the making of a film of the Bolshevik revolution under government auspices. American experts have been asked to assist.

Wallingford, Conn.—Tad Jones, whose college presidents would regard football as a spiritual game. In a speech he said responsibility, obligation and loyalty enter the game and it must be played hard and clean like the game of life.

New York—The inside of that offer of Mayor Walker to head the American League came from Will Rogers at the Lamb's Gambol. He said the mayor had to refuse because he could not get up in time to see a ball game.

What Every Girl Should Know

by GISA PRUCHONE

Copyright, 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. "WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW," with Patsy Ruth Miller, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Sullivan—slender, beautiful, red-headed—is the meteor of the tennis universe. A poetical, queerly spiritual girl is Mary, despite her physical prowess. She has grown up with tennis balls. Her mother died leaving them for a living. Her spirit lives on in Mary. Mary becomes acquainted with Wally Mason, a young reporter. Wally and Mary have much in common. Mary keeps house for her brothers, David and Robert. David, the family support, hopes Mary will get safely married; but Mary disbelieves in love. She loves life. Wally takes her for a night ride.

CHAPTER III—Continued

"What are you telling me, Wally?" Mary was looking at him, and lifted her hair, and caressed the lobe of the ear that wasn't pressed against Wally's sleeve. Well-being filled her as comfort fills the well-fed tabby at the side of the fire. She cushioned her head against the brown leather of the car and flew with the stars. There was no earth, no long green roadster, no Wally, just her gold-tipped wings. Elaine, the little maid of Astolat flying with the stars in a green roadster. With Lancelot? No. Not Lancelot. Lancelot was home, astride his broomstick, stalking a dignified Patch. Then Wally brought her to earth.

"Mary, I love you, dear," he said. The little green car flew on, with the stars keeping pace above and the wind singing against the motor. It was difficult to hear when words were spoken to the blackness of the silence ahead. What she had heard would not possibly be what Wally said. In the first place, granting she had heard aright, it was ridiculous—that statement, at one's second meeting. No. It could not be that. And again, young men do not tell young women of their love against a throbbing motor, with mouths grim and chins straight ahead. And Wally's arm, against which her cheek was nestled, was tant. It could not be that. But he had spoken. Had said something. Mary turned her face to him and smiled. Brightly. Meaning agreement to these vague words he had spoken. "Yes?" her glance said.

"I consider it only fair to tell you that I intend to kiss you."

The green car drew up in the inky dark at the side of the road and settled down with a gasp. There was a somewhat weary fence, Mary could see, and then the vagueness of innumerable trees, planted in rows, with thin young branches gnarled toward the heavens. An orchard, doubtless. She rose in the car, and straightened her ruffled skirt, and then sank back again, with a smile for Wally. He had turned toward her, and was watching her, one arm across the seat of the car behind her shoulders, and the other resting on the steering wheel.

"Well?" he said. Did it mean so little to her then, that she could rise, and straighten the folds of her skirt, and sink back again with that bright vague smile for him? Was she prepared to ignore his declaration to save him pain? Dolores.

"Elaine, dear." He called her their play name.

"Wally." Her sweet little face with the misty green eyes turned upward toward him.

He grew whimsical. Her fondness for this tow-headed youth increased when his smile was wry, and his eyes narrowed.

"It isn't of much interest to you, I suppose, dear. But the fact remains that it was said—and maidens have been known to show some interest in the statement heretofore."

Quite suddenly there was no place upon which to rest her eyes, and she was thankful for the black of the night that enfolded him. She had heard aright that first time. He had said that he loved her. Her heart thudded once, with a queer resounding beat, as if it had been lifted and then dropped into place again. Wally loved her. Well! Well! Well! What did one usually respond to a statement like that? Did one say, "thank-you very much?" It was stupid, sitting there with her hands clasped tightly together, and the presence of Wally beside her, waiting. What did one say? Oh this was unbearable. Aeons had sped by since he had spoken. It was ridiculous. He expected something.

"I—" she cleared her throat. "I—" and could say no more. Knew not what to say. Indeed. You didn't thank him. That would be facetious. Like a coy young lady in a play or a book. She turned toward him, and in a very low voice, responded, troubled, "I don't know what to say, Wally."

"Response enough, Dolores." He lifted his hand to her hair, and brushed the straight silken strands away from her face, holding it behind her ear. He regarded her gravely. Her small face that looked up at him, with the eyes that he could not see—albeit he knew that the mist swam in them—the wildfulness of a child that is bewildered by the strange forces in the dark, emanated from her.

"You don't love me, Elaine?" "I—no, Wally." The direct thrust carried with it a wound, but one more quickly healed because of its directness.

"Not now, Elaine. You are wonderful. The stars follow you, you say. How can they help it? I, being just a man, am not the marvel that you are, sweet. Why should you care for me now? It is stupid of me to expect it. Some day, however. Some day, Elaine—when you have known men—and discover that I am no better than most—"

"Wally." She placed her hand over his, where it tightened on her shoulder, and was impatient with herself for the desire to comfort him. Why did she wish to take his head in her arms, and murmur soothing phrases?

"All right, sweet. Don't let anything bother you. I'll be sticking round for some time yet, did you know that?—and knowing it, does it hand you a thrill?" She pressed his fingers with her own. Wally had reverted again, and though the absence of the pressure relieved her a bit, this light-heartedness carried with it even more poignancy, revealing as it did the sombre depths he endeavored to hide. His light manner was as a gauze curtain through which one could peer and see, ever present, the emotion, the feeling that mattered, that his flippancy could not hide.

A star fell into the black of the fields at their right, with a swooning grace that faintly lit the path through which it sped.

Wally's voice came to her again as something apart from the blur that was he at her side. His grasp on her shoulder tightened. "I consider it only fair to tell you, you ravishing red-head, you with the hair of a medieval page—I consider it only fair to tell you that with your desire or no—I intend to kiss you. Hard." He looked at her. "How does it strike you?"

"Not any," said Mary firmly, and knew herself for a liar, and was furious with herself for the little skip of her heart in anticipation. The little skip of her heart had come unknowingly. Before Mary had had time to counsel herself.

"You Mary! What right has your heart to skip a beat?—you who have no time for love and the encumbrances that trail in the wake of love? And what, you asked flippancy, what is love? Certainly nothing that can in any way affect your heart, you who lack the maternal instinct, and have no time for the heavy passion, and have not yet reached the stage where you need depend upon a man for support. For you dissected love, and discovered that it pulsated with emotion engendered by either, any, or all these three. What right has your heart to skip a beat, Mary?" Nevertheless her heart continued to skip, and she felt a little pulse in her cheek of whose existence she had been unaware heretofore.

The feel of Wally's arm hardened across the small of her back. She was drawn toward him, and felt the hard expanse of his chest against her breast. Then his lips found hers.

On sped the little green car through the night of milky radiance poured earthward by the stars. Wally was silent beside her, giving his entire attention to the wheel. She cast a glance at him once or twice and then sank still lower in the cushioned seat, placing her head against his arm, and closing her eyes. The savor of his kiss was on her lips, and she touched her handkerchief to her mouth to rid herself of the imprint. The car leaped forward with a jerk, and she touched the bit of linen to her cheek. Should Wally have seen that gesture he would become befuddled as to the cause of it. It was difficult to wipe the feel of his kiss from her lips however. It had gone deeper than that.

NEEDLES AS CURE

Pyeongyang, Corea—The x-ray machine in use at the Christian hospital here has disclosed some of the amazing treatments once practiced by Korean doctors of the old school. One man recently examined had 43 copper needles lodged in his abdomen. They had been thrust in, two or three at a time, over a period of four years, as a treatment for indigestion.

GOT YOUR NUMBER?

Budapest—To avoid the many arguments, fights and jamming on busses in the crowded section of Budapest, the management of the bus company recently placed numbered slips at each waiting station. Passengers take slips as soon as they arrive at the stations and are picked up according to number. The only fights reported now are over the lowest numbers.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take them for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"PROBATION AFTER DEATH" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, April 24.

The Golden Text was from I Thess. 4:14, "If we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And when he was demanded of the Pharisees, when the kingdom of God should come, he answered them and said, The kingdom of God cometh not with observation; Neither shall they say, Lo here! or, lo there! for, behold, the kingdom of God is within you" (Luke 17:20, 21).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Heaven is not a locality, but a divine state of mind in which all the manifestations of mind are harmonious and immortal, because fin is not there and man is found having no righteousness of his own, but in possession of 'the mind of the Lord,' as the Scripture says" (p. 201).
